Our Commitment to Our Travelers | Coronavirus Travel Update

Wherever you are as you read this, we hope that you are safe and well.

Here at AHI Travel, the safety of our travelers and employees is our highest priority. AHI has been safely and securely operating international educational travel for nearly 60 years, effectively navigating through various viral crises as they periodically arise.

In these extraordinary times, you can count on our knowledgeable and experienced team at AHI Travel to closely monitor the global impact of COVID-19 with the U.S. Department of State (DOS), the Centers for Disease Control (CDC), the World Health Organization (WHO) and our partners on the ground throughout the world for the latest updates and relevant travel disruptions.

Given the fluidity of global events, we are committed to providing travelers both flexibility and peace of mind. We will continue to communicate with our guests on an individual basis about any possible changes to their travel plans during this unprecedented situation. If you have specific questions, please contact your Passenger Service Representative.

In response to Illinois Governor J. B. Pritzker’s statewide “stay at home” order effective Saturday, March 21, we are working from home for the health and safety of the AHI team. We have systems in place to allow work from home, but have found internet and phone systems have at times been overwhelmed due to the high volume. We ask for your patience and understanding if our communications are slowed due to these circumstances.

We greatly appreciate your patience and support during this challenging time. Like you, we share the hope that the journey through these trying times will be swift and that we will all once again experience the transformative joy of travel together.

Stay well and safe.
